MARKET UPDATE

JCI increased by 1.62% MoM to 6,916 amid almost Rp12.3tn net foreign buy. The domestic economy was conducive during the month of Hari Raya Idul Fitri. Inflation booked a lower number in April compared to the previous month due to harvesting season. PMI manufacturing was also stable in the expansion territory. The homecoming by most Indonesians went well overall during Hari Raya Idul Fitri where the government extended the holiday in order to give people more time to get together for the first time since the covid restriction was revoked. The other positive driver was the exchange rate which is stable at below Rp 15,000 per USD. Another important point in April is that more political parties announced their presidential candidacy which gives the market enough time to digest the political condition until the election in February 2024. Indonesian stocks performed well in April 2023, especially big-cap stocks. The sectors that moved positively came from the infrastructure sector like the telecommunication, energy sector, transportation sector, basic materials sector and consumer non-cyclical sector like automotive. Financial sector which used to be the main driver of indexes was quite muted in April. In general, Indonesian stocks are still relatively cheap compared to the historical valuation. Indonesian stocks can perform further once there is more certainty on US monetary policy as global investors are currently still in the shadow of risk-off. Indonesia 10years government bond yield decreased by 26.1bps to 6.532% as compared to the previous month. In comparison, the US 10-year treasury note decreased by 4bps to 3.433%. US Treasury 10-year yield held up at around 3.4% - 3.6% in April 2023. The US investors are buying more long-term bonds as they expect The Fed will reach the peak of monetary policy. They see that the chance to own high-yield bonds is limited. Hence, the inverted yield curve will persist until the monetary policy changes its direction. The domestic bond market performed well in April as government bond yield is stable at the range of 6.5% - 6.8%. The spread between benchmark yields was 310 - 350 bps in April 2023. One of the factors that the yield can be maintained below 7% is flush liquidity in the domestic market. With the declining inflation rate, bond investors can benefit from a better real yield. Based on DMO bond flow data as of Apr 28, Foreign ownership recorded at 14.86% of the outstanding and inflow of Rp60.50tn YTD.
