MARKET UPDATE

During January 2026, the Indonesia bond market contracted amid risk-off sentiment driven by both global and domestic factors. Based on the Indonesia Government Bond Index (INDOBeX), IndoGB recorded -0.2% MoM contraction, compared with a +1.1% MoM gain in December 2025. Bank Indonesia (BI) maintained a restrictive policy bias, keeping the BI Rate at 4.75% with a near-term focus on IDR stabilization. BI also increased the frequency of SRBI auctions to twice a week to attract foreign capital inflows. Market attention was further directed toward domestic political developments, where there is reshuffle between the deputy finance minister and the deputy governor of BI. Thomas Djivandono was elected as deputy governor of BI and Judo Agung was appointed as deputy minister of finance. The market had responded negatively to these conditions and was followed by a weakening of IDR. On the other hand, positive sentiment came from the release of state revenue realization for the January 2026 period, which recorded an increase in state revenue to the level of IDR 172.7tn (+9.8% YoY) with tax revenue realization of IDR 116.2tn (+30.8% YoY) amidst an ambitious spending plan. In January 2026, BI middle rate was depreciated 0.02% to 16,786/USD.
